The lists featured above only includes board games found on the web. It mostly excludes game platforms, so therefore games are generally easier for people quickly to share and play. Some mentioned board games have a number websites that facilitate them - the list aims to reference the best ones. There are so many board games accessible on the web - this list would be too long if it was listing them all!

ONLINE BOARD GAME PLATFORMS

These platforms house multiple games all together. You need to sign up and create an account to play, this generally isn't much of an obstacle to overcome.

Board Game Arena
This website has 175 different board games. The games are well set up and simple to follow. Very good site! Some games include:

- 6 Nimmt!
- Colt Express
- French Tarot
- Hanabi
- Hive
- Quarto & Quoridor
- Perudo
- Red 7
- Stone Age
- Saboteur

There are better games available for Premium members (roughly $6.50 per month). Only one person in the party needs premium for all to play. Premium games include:

- 7 Wonders
- Carcassonne
- Coup
- Kingdomino
- Love Letter
- Puerto Rico
- Sushi Go!
- Terra Mystica
- Werewolf

People on the same wifi network can't play with each other unless someone in the game has a premium account. Can currently bypass this if an account is just initially created on a different IP network (e.g. create an account on mobile data).

Mattle.online
Can sign up or play as a nameless guest. Has 6 games:

- Azul
- Blokus
- Go
- Splendor
- 7 Wonders: Duel
- Century: Spice Road

Board Games on Steam
Steam is a free gaming platform. Some board games are free, most you'd need to pay for. When playing online, everyone needs to acquire the same game. Therefore if it's a paid game, everyone needs a paid copy of the game.

Some free games:

- Simply Chess
- Catan Universe (A bit glitchy, also on mobile)
- Risk: Global Domination (Pay $18.50 to be able to play whenever you want without wait times. Also on mobile)

Some paid games:

You can get most of these games cheaper on mobile. Prices usually range from $10-$25 excluding sales. Games include:

- Axis & Allies 1942
- Cluedo
- Galaxy Trucker
- Game of life
- Labyrinth: W.O.T.
- Monopoly Plus
- Pandemic
- Scythe
- Stockpile
- Terra Mystica
- Terraforming Mars
- Ticket to Ride

Tabletop Simulator
Costs around $30, but has an excellently vast selection! Over 30 thousand various games and RPG's! Can even create your own games on the Steam workshop. Much like Tabletopia it just provides a simulator for you to interact with the pieces. Just slightly harder than Tabletopia with regards to understanding the functionality. Can play some games locally on the same computer.

Pogo.com
Not the simplest website to wrap your head around at the moment. Lots of ads also. The "early access experience" has fewer games. Has 14 very common multiplayer games including:

- Boggle
- Canasta
- Chess
- Dominoes
- Scrabble
- Monopoly
- Risk
- Yahtzee

Tabletopia
Has over 800 board games! The games aren't set up and run for you, instead it provides you with a simulator that has all the pieces you need for the game on a virtual table. You need to actively move, turn over, and shuffle all components of the game yourself (which takes a bit to learn). Just interacting with pieces can take a little while as well. Can play some games locally on the same computer. Some games require the premium account. Tabletopia has lots of lesser known games, including:

- Terra Mystica
- Railroad Ink
- Santorini
- Secret Hitler
- Quips about Christianity
- Scythe
- Spyfall
- Stockpile
- Sub Terra

Yucata
158 mostly lesser known games. Includes: Castles of Burgundy, Machi Koro, Puerto Rico, Red 7, Stone Age, Terra Mystica, and 2 variations of Carcassonne.

Board Space
Features 84 mostly abstract games, including Euphoria, Khet, Hive, Raj, and Container. Must download a game client. There's a small learning curve to knowing how to join others online.

Vassal
Old game client that simulates board games. Bit to learn with how to download the client and games, how to run games, and how to join with others. Benefit to Vassal is that there's over 2000 games available, though many are removed due to copyright. Used lots for playing War games.

There are plenty of other board game platforms available, including the German sites Boiteajeux Brettspielwelt, as well as Happy Meeple. Board Games Arena is probably the most accessible and has the most mainstream games.

A few other platforms are already mentioned above. PlayOK.com, CardzMania, FunNode.com, and others.

This list is considerably sparse. There are so many options, search a game and there's probably an app for it! Most decent games either cost money, or exist as glitchy knock-offs.

OTHER

Jackbox
Collections of different party games. The host pays for it (ranges $12-$30 per pack, different per pack). Platforms include Steam and consoles. Someone with the game streams. Other players don't need to sign up or buy anything, instead they simply watch and join game with their devices to jackbox.tv.

Town of Salem
Similar to Mafia/Werewolf. There's a bit to understanding with how it runs. Was free, now costs $5-$10 depending on platform (Steam, web, mobile). Classic is free on mobile (limited free goes per day).

Air Console
Website with many different knock-off board games and video games. Players join with their phone as a controller, going on the app or the site airconsole.com. This site functions best with everyone in the same room, but if you can withstand the lag then the host can stream the screen and others can join and play.

Keep Talking and Nobody Explodes
Fun co-op game that involves one person describing a bomb and others instructing how to defuse. Platforms include Steam, mobile, and consoles. Only the host with the bomb buys the game (ranges $12-$22 depending on platform). Other players just need the bomb manual found at bombmanual.com. Anyone playing remotely can't have turns with the bomb unless they also buy/install the game.

Online Collectable Card Games
There's so many different options for online CCG's. Some, like Magic, require payments to be playable. Some, like MTG Arena, require clients to be set up. It'd take another list of it's own to name all options (there's a few good lists online). Here are just 5 CCG's played for free on browsers (after sign up).

Android: Netrunner Jinteki.net

Card Hunter CardHunter.com

Legend of the Five Rings Jigoku.online

Keyforge TheCrucible.online

Yu-Gi-Oh DuelingBook.com

TRIVIA

QuizWitz
Host signs up and streams screen, players simply connect with their devices to catlab.tv. Need to pay $44 to play with more than 6. Can create your own quizzes. Various question types.

Jeopardy Labs
Host just needs to stream screen and other players watch and play along. Don't have to sign up. Can create your own jeopardy games.

Kahoot
Host signs up on Kahoot.com and streams screen, others connect with their devices to Kahoot.it. Can create your own quizzes. Used a lot for education, but does feature general trivia. Only multiple Choice.

MultiplayerTrivia.com
Players need to sign up. Share link to join private game room. Type in written answers. Simply laid out, but as of the release of this list the site is still in beta and lacks features such as choice of categories.

Protobowl
Create room and share link. "Buzz in" and type answers to the questions being read.

There are countless other multiplayer trivia sites and mobile apps, including QuizUp, Trivia Crack and Sporcle.com.

It's assumed that for most of these games you'd run a video or voice chat service simultaneously (e.g. zoom, discord) for the best connective experience. Prices mentioned are in AUD.

As said, this is not an exhaustive list. So many random sites facilitate games, it'd be too much to list them all! When you want to play a specific game, you either must do the research and discover if it exists online already, or get creative, and say, work out how to play over video chat!

Happy Board Gaming! Notes collated by Evan Leed 2020
